

Green

Where the moonlight spills on whippoorwill
Feelings unexpressed to the questions they impose
I'm drowning in those sad green eyes
Lost to this world in an ocean of greenery

To the bells' cheerful sound sing louder around
To see instead of sad green eyes sing louder around
The birds of the bush sing louder around
Of hopes and dreams unrealized sing louder around

A place of green butterflies and honeybee.
On a large flat rock, at the watery edge,
It's a quiet place, beneath a grassy hill,
Green eyes that smile for me.

This is my sanctuary sing louder around
You know what it would be sing louder around
To experience it all sing louder around
Such deep emotion sing louder around

Sing louder around
Sing louder around
