

Violante Indigo

Where sun is erected and blessings are whispers
And I know that one glance could turn me soft
Will become like a drop of rain on every blade of grass
Let that warmth touch your heart
Indigo-trapped silence I am unfolding day by day
And I will rebuild this broken temple
And wrap yourself around me
Won't stop the world from loving you

So Indigo darling don't harm yourself
And shake your head at the mirror
Indigo darling wrap a scarf around your slender neck
It will keep warm through the harsh winds

So Indigo darling where have you gone?
Maybe you will come and rescue me
Indigo darling I want to feel warm again
Indigo darling you are loved

Indigo darling just wait
Indigo darling I miss your eyes
Indigo darling just stay warm
Indigo darling you are loved
Indigo darling
