The Cultivation

Standing on solid ground
Son of the fields starts to sow
The forest is sprouting
The greenery thins out

The crown of the pine spreads
The hedge grows in the moisture

Saw on moor and moss
Sow pine on high hill
Planting heather on dry moors
Sow birch in shallow falter
Sow willow in wet hollow

The fire The fire only ashes now remain
Now remain now remain now remain now remain

By the borders of the waters
Plants a corn
Now the Oaktree grow
Finds six seeds of golden barley
Sowing through his open fingers
Through his open hand
Through his open
