

Note: I saw her one of these people with fire in the heart high moral and strong courage it's beautiful

Fire

I'll see you're fire in the rain
Saw you sleeping without pain
In that house where all the sane
Are complaining about the rain
As if there everlasting bane
Are the cause of there remain
Inside this consuming game
Designed to frame

I'll see you're footsteps in the snow
Moonlight sentence them to glow
All the way down to the lake
Were the world begun to shake
When the water took you're breath
And the sky were burning red
The moon turn black and bled
Like the fire in my head

All these things that I remember
Fireworks in the sky
All these things that I forget
Without even wonder why
All this fear that I remember
All this fear that I forget
Won't compare against you're sight
Tears that hadn't time to dry

I'll hear the whisper of you're smile
As you nodded to that child
Sitting on that pavement stone
With her hand reach out to form
One request to feed her home
One request for you to ease
All the pain that she contain
Without reducing her in shame

I'll see you're fire in the rain
These voices whisper in you're brain
Feelings out of hopelessness
Growing in your mind and yet
You rise up burning with you're flame
Filled you're body with that air
Throw out the last of you're fear
Decide to share

All these things that I remember
Fireworks in the sky
All these things that I forget
Without even wonder why
All this fear that I remember
All this fear that I forget
Won't compare against you're sight
Tears that hadn't time to dry